Volunteers in Medicine would like to thank the Indiana University Social Work Student Association for a donation of nearly $500 from its Chili Cook Off. The club recruited department faculty members to cook their favorite chili recipes, which were sampled by nearly 50 students. Students paid an admission fee and voted for the best chili by donating money to the tip jars. All proceeds were donated to Volunteers in Medicine clinic.

The community-operated, community-owned and community-financed Volunteers in Medicine clinic provides primary care for acute and chronic conditions, walk-in, mental health and dental care.

For more information or to volunteer for the Volunteers in Medicine clinic, visit www.vimmonroecounty.org or send an email to info@VIMMonroeCounty.org.

To make a donation to the clinic, contact the Bloomington Hospital Foundation at 812-353-5002.
